ONE DAY SYMPOSIUM

Organised by the Sydney Branch

Wednesday 6th October 2004
SMITH AUDITORIUM, SHORE SCHOOL NORTH SYDNEY

SYMPOSIUM INFORMATION

CURRENT SPONSORS:

The last five years have seen significant changes in mining projects in the Eastern states of Australia and New Zealand.

This one day special will showcase the interesting developments and innovations that have emerged from the new and innovative approaches to adding value to projects in this changing world.

The one day only symposium will be broken into four sessions as follows:

- Session 1.*
What's new in project development
- Session 2.*
The leading edge of technical innovation
- Session 3.*
New visions for old mines
- Session 4.*
Maximising value – new slants on metal extraction

This symposium will provide a forum to share information on new developments and advances within the industry through a discussion of technical advances in project development, restructuring of old mines, advances in metallurgical technology and innovative operational practice.

We have approached organisations to present papers at the symposium covering developments that they are proud of, represent breakthroughs and want to share with other operators and interested parties.

We expect that the papers will generate considerable discussion if not be provocative and that the attendees will leave with useful information that they can consider and apply to their respective organisations.

The symposium intends to foster intercommunication between members of the minerals industry who are working on the leading edge of technology and management practice. We believe our speakers will promote that discussion.

KEY REASONS TO ATTEND

- Hear about successful innovation in practice
- Meet key company and industry management
- DISCUSS with operational management East Coast developments
- See the poster and trade exhibits
- Take the time to network with sponsors, presenters, exhibitors, attendees and mining industry students
